Seventh Sunday after Pentecost

The Catechism of the Crisis in the Church by Fr. Matthias Gaudron

III The Church's Magisterium

18) When is the pope infallible? (continued)

- What can we learn from this text of Vatican Council I?

By attentively reading this text of Vatican I, we learn that there are four conditions for papal infallibility: 1) the pope must speak "in the exercise of his office as shepherd and teacher of all Christians," that is, not as a private theologian but as head of the Church explicitly engaging "his supreme apostolic authority" received directly from Christ; 2) the subject on which he pronounces must be "a doctrine concerning faith or morals"; 3) the doctrine must not only be taught, but the pope must declare it obligatory by an authoritative act ("a doctrine...to be held"); 4) this will to oblige the faithful to assent must be addressed to "the universal Church."

- Is the manifestation of the pope's will to oblige the universal Church essential for a papal act to be infallible?

Yes, the pope's manifestation of his will to oblige the universal Church to hold a point of doctrine or morals is necessary for infallibility to be engaged: this act of authority is even the essential element of the ex cathedra definition.

- How does the pope manifest this will to oblige?

The pope manifests his will to make a doctrine obligatory in the Church by clearly declaring that those who refuse it no longer have the Catholic faith and are henceforth outside the Church.

- Can the pope use his infallibility to impose novelties?

Papal infallibility is entirely at the service of the conservation of the faith, which, as we have seen, is immutable and necessary for salvation.[28] Vatican I teaches: "For the Holy Spirit was promised to the successors of Peter not so that they might, by His revelation, make known some new doctrine, but that, by His assistance, they might religiously guard and faithfully expound the revelation or deposit of faith transmitted by the Apostles." [29]

- Does the solemn (infallible) definition of a truth of faith occur frequently?

The solemn definition of a truth of faith does not occur often; numerous popes have never used this power. There was only one instance of this in the twentieth century: the definition of the dogma of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary into heaven by Pope Pius XII on November 1, 1950.

- How did Pope Pius XII manifest his will to oblige the Church during the definition of the dogma of the Assumption?

Pius XII proclaimed the dogma of the Assumption of our Lady by declaring, in the Apostolic Constitution

Munificentissimus Deus:

by the authority of our Lord Jesus Christ, of the Blessed Apostles Peter and Paul, and by Our own authority We pronounce, declare, and define that the dogma was revealed by God, that the Immaculate Mother of God, the ever Virgin Mary, after completing her course of life upon earth, was assumed to the glory of heaven both in body and soul. Therefore, if anyone, which may God forbid, should dare either to deny this, or voluntarily call into doubt what has been defined by Us, he should realize that he has cut himself off entirely from the divine and Catholic faith.
