FRUIT DRAWN FROM PRAYER AND MEDITATION

If you would endure with patience the adversities and miseries of this life, be a man of prayer. If you would acquire strength and courage to vanish the temptations of the enemy, be a man of prayer. If you would crush your self will, with all its inclinations and desires, be a man of prayer. If you would know the wiles of satan and defend yourself against his snares, be a man of prayer. If you would live with a joyous heart and pass lightly along the road of penance and sacrifice, be a man of prayer. If you would drive away vain thoughts and cares which worry the soul like flies, be a man of prayer. If you would nourish the soul with the sap of devotion and have it always filled with good thoughts and desires, be a man of prayer. If you would strengthen and establish your heart in the ways of God be a man of prayer. For herein does a man receive the unction and grace of the Holy Spirit, who teaches all things. Nay more, would you mount to the summit of contemplation and enjoy the sweet embraces of the Spouse, exercise yourself in prayer, for it is the road that leads to contemplation and to the taste of what is heavenly. Do you see now how great is the strength and power of prayer? In proof of all that has been said-apart from the witness of the divine scriptures-let that suffice for the moment as proof sufficient what we have heard and seen, what we see every day, many simple persons who have achieved all we have enumerated above and even greater by the exercise of prayer.

Such are the words of St. Bonaventure.

In prayer he says, the soul cleanses itself from sin, charity is nourished, faith is strengthened, hope is made secure, the spirit rejoices, the soul grows tender, and the heart is purified; truth discovers itself, temptation is overcome, sadness takes to flight, the senses are renewed, failing virtue is made good, tepidity disappears, the rust of sin is rubbed away. In it are brought forth lively flashes of heavenly desires, and in these fires rises the flame of divine love. Great are the excellences of prayer, great its privileges. The heavens open before it and unveil therein their secrets, and to it are the ears of God ever attentive. Let this suffice to give some idea of the fruit of this Holy Exercise.
