“Behold I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world.”

Saying " I am with you," Christ our Lord comprehends all the ways He can be with His Apostles. The first is common to all creatures, to whom He is most present, giving them the whole being, life, and motion which they have. The second is common to all the just with whom He is present by His grace, giving them supernatural life and virtues. The third is special to the elect alone, with whom He is present with particular providence, careful of them, and working by them great and wonderful works. The fourth is by the most Blessed Sacrament of the altar, in which He is really and truly, as He is God, and as He is man, to be our meat and spiritual nourishment. After all these manners is Christ our Lord in His holy Church, careful of her, and governing her as a king in his kingdom, as a pilot in his ship, as a father of a family in his house, and as a master in his school, and all this He promises when He says " I am with you," that is, with you who represent my universal Church, with you who are my dear beloved disciples, and with all those who shall follow and imitate you.

And Christ our Lord is with us, not partially, one day present and another absent, but all days, all hours, and all moments of the day ; not for a limited time of a thousand or two thousand years, but to the end of the world. In which words He assures us that His Church shall last until the end of the world, and consequently, her laws, sacraments, and sacrifices ; and that, therefore, He is with us today, and will be also tomorrow, even until the last day ; and this world being ended, He will be with His in a much better and much more excellent manner, which shall endure for all eternity.

Christ our Lord made this promise to his disciples, in order to comfort them in the absence which He was to make, ascending to Heaven; as also for the absence which He made, seeing them but seldom, and after some intervals during the forty days He remained in this world after His Resurrection. As if He had said, "Although I ascend to heaven, and shall now see you but seldom, yet know and hold for certain that I am with you invisibly ; I will not leave you fatherless and without a comforter; for although you see me not corporally, yet am I always as present with you as if you saw me." Also to encourage them to the expedition which He had committed to them, sending them through the whole world to preach, baptise, and to work miracles, assuring them that He would always be with them, to help them ; as if He had said, "Dismay not yourselves, thinking that you are too unfit and feeble for so high a commission ; for I myself am always with you, fortifying your weakness ; and I myself it is who am to work these works in you, and to accompany you wherever you go, without departing from your side." And also to help them in the execution of all that He commanded them ; for knowing that He was present with them, and beheld them how they behaved themselves in their function, the thought of this should make them the more careful and diligent in performing it not only without default or imperfection, but with all the perfection that was possible for them, as those who were in the sight of their Lord and master, and whom they greatly endeavoured to please. Our Lord also says to us : "Never be forgetful of me, but always remember that I am with thee ; in thy labours to comfort thee ; in thy functions and ministry to assist thee: and in all thy works to judge thee and reward thee."
